Chapman and Smoot, informing the Senate they were ready to receive them in the representative chamber to hear any communications, that his honour, now the acting governor may think proper to make; whereupon, the Senate repaired to the representative chamber, and the following message was communicated to both branches of the Legislature, by Thomas A. Rogers, Esq. Secretary of State.

Gentlemen of the Senate and of the House of Representatives,

The distressing and lamentable event, which has occurred since the last adjournment of the General Assembly, the death of our late chief magistrate, has by a provision of the Constitution, rendered it necessary for me to assume the discharge of the executive duties of the government, and I cannot, in the outset of this communication, refrain from expressing to you, that it is with the most peculiar sensations of pain, that I have entered upon the discharge of those duties; a pain arising not only from the reflection of the loss of a more experienced officer than myself, but also from a recollection which is continually renewed, that of the loss of a friend and brother.

In taking upon myself the exercise of the powers of the chief magistrate, I have been actuated alone by a conviction that the constitution imperiously demanded it of me, from the station with which I had been honoured in the Senate; and if in the execution of the trust which has devolved on me, I shall satisfy the wishes of my fellow citizens, I shall ever reflect upon it with a pleasure, inferior to that only which arises from a consciousness of having exerted my abilities for the best interests of the community; sensible as I am of the high and important duties I have to discharge, and of my incapacity to discharge them with an ability equal to my wishes, I shall rely much and with confidence on your friendly co-operation and assistance, being fully convinced of your anxiety for the promotion of the general welfare.

In entering upon the deliberations incident to your stations, you cannot but derive much satisfaction and encouragement in the reflection that amidst the severe pecuniary embarrassments under which we in common with our sister states, have for the last two years been labouring, it has pleased a gracious providence to bestow upon us the blessing of health, that the labours of the husbandman have been rewarded with abundant productions of the earth, both of sustenance and profit, and that generally throughout our State, a degree of literary and moral improvement manifests itself almost without example in the same period, and which cannot fail greatly to promote the interests of domestic happiness and social order.

In calling your attention to the various subjects which it has been made by law the duty of the executive to carry into effect, I have to inform you that the contract made by the late Governor for the erection of a state house at the town of Cahawba has not been complied with on the part of the contractor within the time specified by the contract, owing to difficulties unforeseen at the time the contract was made; but the building is nearly completed and the necessity for its occupation by the Legislature so great, that I have thought it would best promote the public interest to receive it, subject to be completed hereafter, and you will permit me to congratulate you on being enabled to carry on your deliberations with so much ease to yourselves as the State House affords. Of the sum of nine thousand dollars for which the house was to be built, seven thousand five hundred dollars has been paid to the contractor, and the remaining sum of one thousand five hundred dollars will be paid as soon as the building is completed.

Of the sum of one thousand dollars the residue of the sum appropriated, six hundred and sixteen dollars have been expended in providing the necessary furniture for your accommodation, and the balance being three hundred and eighty-four dollars has been deposited in the treasury together, with the receipts for the expenditures.

I submit the propriety of your making a further appropriation for the purpose of providing window shutters and for enclosing the lot for the preservation of the building.

The provisions of an act to provide for the organization and disciplining the militia of the State of Alabama, so far as it required duties of the executive have been carried into effect, with the exception of the appointment of a time for the election of major generals; the act authorized the designation of but one place in each division at which the elections shall be held; I have delayed the execution of this part of the law, with a view of recommending to your consideration the propriety of so modifying it, as to enable the elections to be held at the place of holding courts in each county respectively, this modification will conform to the intention of the law, by enabling the officers to bestow their suffrages with the least inconvenience to themselves.

I regret to state, that delays in some instances have taken place in the transmission both of civil and military commissions, owing to the difficulties of communicating with distant parts of the state.

The reservation by a law of Congress of seventy-two sections or two entire townships of land for the use of a seminary of learning, and to be vested in the Legislature of this state to be designated by the Secretary of the Treasury, had not been completed, owing to some of the most valuable lands not having until lately been surveyed: most of the reservation has however been made, and it is expected, that the whole will be completed in a short time. Commissioners for leasing the lands which have been reserved in conformity with an act of the last session of the Legislature were appointed by the Governor; I have partial information only, in relation to the proceedings of the commissioners. The act does not point out what course the commissioners shall pursue after having rented the same; an abstract of the reports received are herewith submitted marked A.

The future disposition of these lands is a subject of the highest importance to our State, and one which I conceive imperiously demands your early attention.

In conformity with the provisions of an act, providing for the preservation of the public arms, a contract has been made for the erection of a building to be of brick, and twenty feet square, for the sum of six hundred dollars, and a place designated for its erection: the building is not yet completed, but it is in progress; the arms have been received and delivered to the quarter master general.

Canformably with an act to provide for the sale of lots in the town of Cahawba, and other purposes, I have caused to be surveyed two hundred lots, which are to be sold on the second Monday of the present month, the result of the sale will be the subject of a future communication.

In pursuance of the act to provide for the examination of certain rivers therein named and for other purposes, I have employed Mr. Terry of North Carolina, as principal and sole engineer, and to perform a part of those duties, only, finding the sum appropriated inadequate to the performance of the whole of the duties required by the act. In conformity with my instructions, he has already examined the Coosa river from the mouth of Wills creek to the lower end of the Falls of Witumpka.

His report thereon has been received, which, together with the contract made with him is herewith submitted marked B. he is now engaged in the examination of the Tennessee river, from the head of the Muscle shoals, to where the state line crosses the same, and I expect to be enabled before your adjournment, to lay before you his report thereon--should it be the intention of the general Assembly to cause at this time an examination of the other rivers, and routs for roads contemplated in the act to be made, I suggest the expediency of constituting and appointing a board or committee of public works.

Owing to unavoidable delays the resolution of the last session of the General Assembly, vesting the Governor with authority to settle the accounts between this state and the state of Mississippi, the accounts have not been adjusted, but the subject is now under consideration.

By virtue of a resolution of the last General Assembly authorising the Governor to effect a loan for the purposes of the State, the late Governor borrowed of the Planters and Merchants Bank of Huntsville, ten thousand dollars which will become due on the 24th and 27th days of December next: I have lately received a letter from the President of the Bank, a copy of which is herewith submitted marked C. which will enable you to make such arrangements with the Bank as will best comport with the public interest.

A particular statement of the receipts into the treasury and of the public expenditures for the last political year will be laid before you by the proper officer, and I regret to state, that the receipts fall far short of the necessary expenditures of the government.

Returns of the census, which was directed by a law of the last session of the Legislature to be taken, have been received from twenty-four counties, an abstract of which is herewith submitted marked D. the aggregate amount of population in these counties is one hundred and twenty-nine thousand, two hundred and twenty-seven, so soon as the returns are completed they will be laid before you.

By the second section of the second article of the Constitution of the United States, it is provided, that each state shall appoint in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors equal to the whole number of Senators and representatives to which the state may be entitled in the Congress, to vote for persons to fill the offices of President and Vice President of the United States, and by an act of Congress it is provided, that the electors shall be appointed within thirty-four days preceding the first Wednesday in December in every fourth year succeeding the last election: No act having been passed by the General Assembly of this State on this subject, and the fourth day of March next being the time at which by the Constitution the term of service of the present President and Vice President will expire, it becomes necessary, that an act should be passed designating the mode of the appointment of electors; and it may be proper to observe, that the time at which the electors are by law to give their votes is so near at hand that it seems there is no other mode left, but for the Legislature to make the appointments.

Assembled as you are from all parts of the State, whatever subjects tending to promote the welfare of our fellow citizens, which may require your deliberations will no doubt suggest themselves to you: should there be any thing brought to the notice of the executive during the session, which may be of public interest, I shall not fail to lay it before you. That your deliberations may result in the greatest possible good to the community at large is my anxious and only wish.

THOMAS BIBE.

The General Assembly of the state of Alabama sensibly feeling and sincerely lamenting the irreparable loss sustained in the death of our late governor William W. Bibb, deem it a duty we owe to ourse ves, our fellow citizens and his revered memory, to express to the world the feelings of our hearts. We are aware that the pen of panegyric can but faintly paint his virtues---and should the tongue of eulogy attempt to express them, it would fail in the effort.

To say he was a man without an equal would be saying too much ; but to say he was a man of transcendant virtue and patriotism, is nothing more than is due to his memory.

He was the friend of liberty and of man ; and his unceasing efforts were to perpetuate the one and promote the happiness of the other.

The archives of the nation will shew to the latest posterity, that he was a pure republican : the greater part of his short life was devoted to the service of his country, and his fame is impervious to the shafts of calumny.

He was an admirer of the immortal Father of his country : and it may well be said, that Washington chalked out the paths of virtue and Bibb delighted to follow them.

But, Heaven has decreed, that all earthly good shall pass away---and He "who maketh darkness his pavilion," hath been pleased in his incomprehensible wisdom to take from us this excellent and beloved man ; and we can only pray in the sincerity of our hearts, that the smile of that being who resides in the celestial mansions may be upon him ; and against his name, in the book of life, may happiness be written. Therefore, as a public testimony of sincere regret for the loss, and in profound respect for our late governor,

Resolved, that the members of this General Assembly wear crape on the left arm during the present session.

Be it further resolved, that the Rev. Mr. Kennedy be requested to preach a funeral sermon in the state house on the 26th day of the present instant, suited to the occasion.

The Senate proceeded to the consideration of the following memorial and resolution sent from the house of representatives, to wit :

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States,

The Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Alabama, respectfully represent, that upon the petition of their constituents they are induced to address this memorial to your honourable body under the fullest confidence that the strong reasons here detailed will not fail to produce their just influence in your deliberation upon a subject of such vital importance to a large portion of the citizens of the United States. Circumstances beyond the controul of human wisdom, have changed the fair face of our national prosperity, and from the highest elevation we are suddenly depressed to a point of stagnant uncertainty ; where we remain in doubt whether we shall again ascend to our former rank, or descend to a still lower stage of declension. At the close of the late war with Great Britain, the establishment of a general peace and the consequent revival of Commerce throughout the world, cotton the staple article of this State rose to a very high price and obtained ready sale in European markets.

Shortly after this period this country was inundated with the notes of various State Banks, and a very large amount of Mississippi Stock was also in circulation and obtainable upon easy and accommodating terms to purchasers : which stock by law had been made receivable in payment for public land in the state of Mississippi and the then territory of Alabama.

Amidst circumstances so propitious for the United States and unfortunate for the citizens of this infant State was a portion of the public land within our limits offered for sale by the government of the United States. Attracted by the fertility of our soil and stimulated by the desire of participating in the great profits which the growing of cotton promised to the planters, people from every quarter thronged the public sales loaded with Bank notes and Mississippi stock. The consequences were such as the circumstances were naturally calculated to produce. The land sold for prices unparalleled in the annals of public sales and an immense debt is now owing by the citizens to the government. The untried results of a general peace have baffled the calculations of the most prudent and sagacious merchants in the world : a general derangement of the money system has taken place ; commerce has languished ; our staple commodity has fallen, to less than the price it maintained at the time of those sales. Most of the State Banks then in high credit have been compelled to curtail their discounts and call in their notes from circulation : Even the Bank of the United States which promised in its commencement a sound and safe circulation and an equality of exchange has also been constrained to diminish the circulation of its notes until they are as scarce as gold and silver, which we rarely see. The metallic currency of the country is locked up in the vaults of the Banks, and the community is left without a currency for the ordinary purposes of trade. In addition to all these adverse circumstances a law was passed by your honourable body at your last session, changing the mode of selling the public land, reducing the minimum price to one dollar and twenty five cents per acre, and requiring the whole purchase money to be paid in advance.

Although this law may be wise and politic, its operation upon those who purchased before its passage is peculiarly hard : and when added to the other circumstances enumerated, becomes oppressive. Land under the late law sells for less than former purchasers paid for the first instalment of land, only equal in quality and situation. By examining the surveyors notes and the Registers and Receivers returns, it will be seen, that land in Colbert's reserve equal in quality and situation sold in October last for less than one fourth of the price given in March 1818, for the adjacent land. This prevents former purchasers from partially relieving themselves by selling a part of the land purchased even at a loss of half the instalment paid : for none will purchase land at a high price when it can be had so cheap. Your memorialists therefore believe that a great portion of their petitioners never can pay for their land at the prices they have agreed to give. And unless your honorable body will pass a law granting them competent relief they must fall victims to the change of times and the change of policy adopted by the General Government. They have penetrated the forests but to make plantations and dwellings for their more fortunate fellow citizens who have remained in the enjoyment of social comforts, until this epoch so disastrous to our fellow citizens shall arrive. Many of them ventured into this new country and purchased land for the permanent settlement of themselves and their children ; hoping, that while they remained on this side of time they might pay for the land and secure to their wives and children the fruits of their labor, when the great author of their being should call them hence. All these pleasing hopes are now dashed to the ground, and nothing can revive them but a generous interference on the part of your honorable body. Your memorialists therefore respectfully pray that a law may be passed by your honorable body, granting such relief as may be best suited to the circumstances of our petitioners and the policy of the General Government. And we would further represent that there is another class of citizens among us who have greatly promoted the interest of the General Government by improving lands unsold, and for the want of capital are unable to purchase lands at such prices as the lands have heretofore sold and now continue to sell for. We would therefore humbly represent the propriety of granting that relief to those who have improved public lands as may be deemed expedient.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Alabama, in General Assembly convened, That a copy of this memorial be forwarded to each of our Senators, and one to our representative in Congress, and they are hereby requested to use their best exertions to obtain for our fellow citizens the relief prayed for.

Which memorial and resolution were read first time.

The General Assembly of the State of Alabama to the Congress of the United States respectfully represent,

That by an act of the general government enabling the people of the Alabama Territory to form a Constitution and state government, and for the admission of such state into the Union on an equal footing with the original states, it is declared, that each and every tract of land, sold by the United States after the first day of September next following the enactment of the recited law, shall be and remain exempt from any tax laid by the order, or under the authority of this state, whether for state, county, township, parish, or any other purpose whatsoever, for the term of five years from and after the respective days of the sales thereof. The situation of the United States lands, anterior to the abolition of the law, which at that day controlled its sales, at once evinced the policy of the restrictive measure. The law under which the Government lands are now sold, goes at once to destroy the reason upon which this law was predicated, and seems strongly to indicate a repeal of the restriction.

In the same law it is also declared, that all navigable waters within the State of Alabama shall for ever remain public highways, free to the citizens of this state and of the United States, without any tax, duty, impost, or toll therefor, imposed by this state. To this section of the law the Convention of Alabama conceived a cause of regret; but which at that moment was deemed irremediable. The soundest reflection which can be afforded on the relations of this country induces a belief, that to navigate a portion of our rivers by means out of which tolls will follow, will be the best policy; and it being impossible for your memorialists to conceive the point of injury to the United States, pray the abolition of this restriction also, with the condition that no tax duty, impost, or toll, shall ever be imposed on any citizen of the United States, other than those imposed on the citizens of the State of Alabama.

Which was read the first time, and ordered for a second reading to-morrow.

To the Honourable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, in Congress convened, The Memorial of the Legislature of the State of Alabama respectfully represents, That there are a number of islands unoccupied and not disposed of in the rivers Tennessee, Coosa, Tombeckbee, Alabama, and Mobile, in the State of Alabama; and which might, if in the power of the said state, be applied to the most beneficial purposes. They, therefore, represent to your Honourable body, that the Alabama State includes a country of fertile soil, interspersed with water courses, which, with the application of proper means, might be rendered navigable. In accomplishing which object not only this state will be much benefitted, but also her adjoining sister states, and add to the interest of the general government, of which Alabama promises to be a flourishing and useful branch. Our state, in her infantile situation, have not yet the means to carry into effect the above mentioned and most desirable object as speedily as the good of the state and the interest of the Union require.

From considerations above enumerated we the representatives of the people of the State of Alabama having in view not only the good of our state, but also that of the United States, respectfully request, that your honourable body, if to you it may seem just and right, to enact some law appropriating the islands in the rivers above mentioned to the purpose of facilitating the navigation of the water courses of the state; which was read the first time, and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

Mr. Hanby, from the Select Committee appointed to inquire into the expediency of providing for the digest of the laws of the state, and to inquire of the Judges of the State what progress they have made in relation to that subject, beg leave to report that they have performed that service, and received for answer the following:

Cahawba, 28th Nov. 1820. To the Honorable the Committee appointed pursuant to a resolution of the Senate, That a Committee be appointed to enquire into the expediency of passing a law providing for the Digest of the laws of the State, and instructing said committee to call on the Judges, and Attorney General, to know what progress they had made, if any, in digesting the laws of the State, as required by the law of the last General Assembly.

Gentlemen, the undersigned regret, that owing to the many arduous duties required of them, of a nature more pressing and indispensable than those alluded to in the resolution of the Senate, they have not been able to make any progress in the performance of the duty assigned them by the law of the last General Assembly. They presume that it will only be necessary to direct your attention to the many duties, of a nature strictly judicial, incumbent on them by the existing laws, to show satisfactorily the impossibility of complying with the provisions of the law aforesaid.

It is the duty of each Judge in the State to hold the courts of a circuit, composing six counties twice in the year, which occupies, at each time from six to eight weeks. It is, also, the duty of the Attorney General to attend the courts of one of the Judicial circuits, and prosecute in behalf of the State. By adverting to the periods of commencement in the several circuits, it will be found, that there is no time at which the Judges and Attorney General could meet together between the commencement of the circuits in January and the meeting of the Supreme Court in May, which occupies from two to three weeks, and closes near the first of June. Immediately succeeding the arduous duties of holding the Circuit Courts, and the still more arduous duties of the Supreme Court, there is a period of about six weeks before it becomes necessary to commence holding the courts of the two circuits, one of which must be attended by the Attorney General; and there is again, no opportunity of a meeting of the Judges and Attorney General until the close of the Supreme Court in the fall, which it is apparent cannot take place much before the first of December, then ensues about six weeks, during which time, it would be impossible for them to remain together, but by a total neglect of private affairs, and absence from their families.

To say nothing of the impolicy and danger to society of occupying in any other way, any portion of the time and attention of those on whom devolves the performance of so many and such highly responsible duties, the impracticability of accomplishing, in such short respites from their more immediate duties, a work of so much difficulty and labour, in a manner calculated to be useful and beneficial to the State, cannot fail to be discovered. Our experience already proves the inutility of a digest hastily and imperfectly thrown together: and it is not to be presumed that any other than a well executed work would be acceptable to the Legislature or to the people.

With a due regard to their own characters and to the welfare and interest of the public, the undersigned feel their inadequacy to a proper compliance with the provisions of the law of the last General Assembly, whilst they perform their own duties. With great respect we have the honor to be your obedient servants. (Signed.) C. C. Clay, Reuben Saffold, Abner Lipscomb, Richard Ellis, Henry Hitchcock.

On motion of Mr. Sims, ordered that said bill be engrossed and read a third time this day.

A message from the house of representatives by Mr. Perry---Mr. President, the house of representatives have adopted the following resolution. Resolved, that the house of representatives will be ready to adjourn this evening at the hour of three o'clock.

Mr. Sims from the committee appointed on the part of the senate to confer with the committee from the house of representatives on the subject of the amendment proposed by the senate, to a bill apportioning the representatives among the several counties in this state, and to lay off the same into senatorial districts, reported, that they had had a meeting, but could not come to any agreement. They submit to the senate the written reasons which were submitted by each committee for their consideration, to wit: "The committee appointed on the part of the house of representatives to confer with the committee appointed on the part of the senate, on the amendments made in the senate to the bill entitled an act to apportion the representatives among the several counties in this state and to divide the state into senatorial districts according to the returns of the late census, to which amendment the house of representatives have disagreed, have the honor of submitting the reasons in support of the course pursued by that house. The Constitution on the subject of apportionment is in some instances ambiguous; but like other instruments it must receive such construction as will carry into effect all the provisions if practicable, and if it is found impracticable to give operation to all, the least important must yield to those of higher character.

If the question under discussion depended on this rule alone, it is believed the provisions of the Constitution requiring the present General Assembly to apportion the representatives and senators, and to divide the state into senatorial districts, is of higher import than any provision in relation to the senatorial term of service: but when the question is fully investigated, it will be found that the term of service for senators to be elected in the incipient stages of the government is contingent and does not depend alone upon the term of three years mentioned in the 12th section of the third article of the Constitution; but upon other provisions which in their character are active and require some act to be done before they can go into operation.

By complying with the requisitions of the thirteenth section of the same article, one third of the senators will have a right to serve but one year, one third for two years, and one third will have a right to serve for three years; although all were chosen for the term of three years. If, however the Senate convened under that section, shall refuse to cast lots and make the classification therein required, the term of service of each must necessarily be the same, all having been elected for the same term; but this refusal would be a violation of a positive command of the constitution, and render that body after that session unconstitutional. A senatorial term is mentioned in the latter part of the eighth section of the schedule, which for the present may be admitted to be three years, but it can only be ascertained to be so by reference to the twelfth section of the third article before referred to, as the ninth section of the same article has pointed out the time when an emuneration is to be made, and the apportionment of Representatives necessary thereon. And the tenth section of the same article has also commanded the General Assembly at the first session, after every such emuneration to fix by law, the whole number of senators, and to divide the State into the same number of districts; it is obvious that the term of service mentioned in the schedule can only be two years, unless we violate the mandate of that section by refusing to pass a law fixing the number of senators, and dividing the State into the same number of districts, which refusal will be equivalent to a refusal on the part of the Senate, convened in conformity with the thirteenth section before referred to, and will make the senatorial term depend upon the will of the Legislature, and not upon the constitution. It is believed that no correct distinction can be drawn between the mandatory influence in the tenth and thirteenth sections of the third article, nor can the obligatory force on either be considered stronger than the other. Both require an act to be performed before the senatorial term can be made less than three years; and a refusal in either case must produce the same effect. Taking all these provisions of the constitution together, it appears very clear, that a senatorial term of service means nothing more than that period of time that a senator may serve without violating some positive provision of the constitution which conflicts with the term of three years. But in ascertaining when the term of the present senators expires, and when the first apportionment is to be made, the rules of construction on which the foregoing is based, becomes in a great degree unnecessary; because the temporary General Assembly, created by the eighth section of the schedule is limited to two years, by a fair construction of that section in conjunction with other sections of the permanent provisions to which it plainly refers. The first branch of that section points directly to the time when all its powers shall cease, and that time is limited by the operation of the section connected with the provisions to which it points. It says "until the first enumeration shall be taken as directed by this constitution." The counties enumerated shall be entitled to the Representatives attached to each; "and each County shall be entitled to one senator, who shall serve for one term." The word "until" limits and controuls the operation of the whole section, unless the provision respecting the Senate can be released from its operation, and that appears to be impossible upon principles of equal grammatical construction, the copulative conjunction "and" unites the Senatorial with the Representative branch, and subjects the whole to the same rule of construction; consequently, when the Representative branch ceases to exist, the senatorial branch must cease also. The Senate having consented to apportion the representative branch of the General Assembly, and thereby pass it from the operation of the temporary provisions of the schedule, into the permanent provisions of the body of the constitution, and having refused to apportion the Senators and divide the State into districts, we respectfully ask the reasons upon which they have acted, that we may if practicable come to an arrangement by which the government may be perpetuated according to the constitution.

The committee appointed on the part of the Senate to confer with the committee appointed by the Representative branch on the amendments made in the Senate to the bill apportioning the Senators and Representatives under the late census, offer to the House of Representatives, the reasons which influenced the course pursued in the Senate.

It is believed the eighth section of the schedule does not lead to the tenth section of the third article, to shew when senators shall be apportioned, because it contravenes the main intention as will appear from the twelfth section of the same article.

It is believed the duration of a senatorial term until the reapportionment ordered in 1828 is three years; and that the 13th section of the 3d article cannot apply to this question, because this section is manifestly intended to be an exception to the general term of senatorial office, in order to effect a particular object, and enters fully into the main intention of the framers of the instrument, and to give effect to the ninth and tenth sections at this time, would destroy the main intention, unequivocally expressed without the necessity of effecting a particular object, which could not be otherwise effected.

It is also believed, that if the eighth section of the schedule is to form the data of a senatorial term, commencing from an election ordered in the preceding section, that it applies with equal force to the Representatives elected in the year eighteen hundred and nineteen; this section declaring that until the first enumeration shall be made, each county shall be entitled to the number of members therein designated. The enumeration cannot be considered as being made within the meaning of the constitution, until made to the constituted authority, which has been done at the present session. It consequently follows that the Representatives now convened hold their stations in contravention of the constitution, for in this section the duration of their service is measured and fixed by the first enumeration by which they are recognised as constitutional members, for two sessions without an intermediate election; yet as the second and twelfth sections of the third article goes imperatively to destroy the application given this section, the Senate cannot indulge it. In no part of the constitution can the Senate find an authority to elect senators for one year, which must follow if the bill passes, or they must be elected for three years, which directly goes to innovate all the provisions relevant to the senatorial department in future. If the senatorial districts are now laid out, and persons elected to fill them, it is believed those persons cannot be received as constitutional senators the first year of their service, being the last year of those senators elected in the year eighteen hundred and nineteen, and settled by the twelfth section, third article.

It is furthermore believed, that if senatorial districts are now laid out, and a senatorial apportionment made, the senators next elected must hold their offices for three years, and cannot be construed to hold them for a less or greater duration of time.

The reasons inducing this belief are these:

An apportionment predicated on the basis of an enumeration of the white inhabitants, brings you to the great and permanent principles of the Constitution: to wit.

That representation must ultimately proceed on the enumeration of white inhabitants; whenever, therefore, an apportionment of the Senate will take place on the basis of an enumeration of white inhabitants, the ultimate object of the Constitution is accomplished as regards the senatorial representation, and it must follow, that their term of office will also be regulated by the ultimate provisions on that subject. It is needless to remark, that in that case their term of office is a term of three years.

The Senate have never ceased to deplore the difference of sentiment existing between the two Houses; but one command is known to both. If an unfortunate miscalculation crept into the convention in relation to the first census, from which emanated the mandate upon which the present enumeration is made; if that enumeration goes to break down the intention of the framers of the Constitution,—it goes to contravene the main provisions of the Constitution as relates to the senatorial department, and in doing so prostrates the best interests of the country.

It is suggested how far this provision is to be viewed as nugatory, going to destroy that which it was intended to preserve.

Mr. Casey moved that the senate insist on said amendment, and the question being taken thereon, it was decided in the affirmative. Ordered, that the secretary acquaint the House of Representatives thereof. On motion, ordered that Nicholas Davis, senator from Limestone county, have leave to spread on the journal the following dissent and protest against the amendment of the senate, by striking out the second section of the bill, which passed the House of Representatives, to be entitled an act to apportion the Representatives among the several counties in this state, and to divide the state into senatorial districts, to wit: "In conformity to the provisions of the constitution, the House of Representatives passed a bill to be entitled an act to apportion the representatives among the several counties in this state, and to divide the state into senatorial districts, according to the returns of the late census. In this House an amendment has been made to this bill by striking out the second section which provided for the apportionment of senators, and laying the state off into districts. As this amendment in my estimation defeats the spirit and intention of the constitution, I, Nicholas Davis, a senator from Limestone county, therefore dissent and protest against the amendment for these reasons: The 9th and 10th sections of the 3d article of the constitution, when taken together, imperiously require of the present General Assembly, to apportion both branches of the legislative department, which if done, would terminate the temporary legislative body created by the eighth section of the schedule, and which by the term of its creation, cannot exist after the first day of August, 1821, whether we choose to make this apportionment or not. The eighth section of the schedule above referred to, provides that "until the first enumeration shall be made as directed by this constitution." The several counties therein enumerated shall be entitled to representation as therein expressed, "and each county shall be entitled to one senator who shall serve for one term." In correct grammatical construction, the word "until," controls the whole section, and limits the duration of the existence of the provisional legislature, until this time, unless the word "term" used in that section, can controul all the permanent provisions contained in the 9th and 10th sections above referred to. To ascertain what is meant by the word "term" we are compelled to resort to the 12th and 13th sections of the 3d article. The 12th section provides that "senators shall be chosen by the qualified electors for the term of three years," but there is no provision in any part of the Constitution, which gives the senators thus chosen the right to serve three years. On the contrary in the 13th section it appears that "senators chosen according to the apportionment under the census taken in 1820, when convened shall be divided by lot into three classes as nearly equal as may be. The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the first year; those of the second class at the expiration of the second year; and those of the third class at the expiration of the third year." If we have a right at this time to refuse to make the apportionment, because the law in its operation may make the present senatorial term two years. The senators chosen under the 13th section of the 3d article, may for the same reason refuse to submit to a classification, the term of service in both cases being derived from the same provision of the Constitution. These reasons have convinced my mind that a senatorial term of service is not three years, but one, two or three years, according to other provisions of the Constitution, which in their necessary operation limit the period of service. As I firmly believe that the legislative power of this State will cease with the session unless an apportionment is made in conformity with the mandate of the constitution, I have deemed my duty to spread on the journals the reasons upon which my vote on this subject is based.
